First and foremost, I would like to deeply thank my advisors, Jason S. Chang and Jyh-Shing Roger Jang. This dissertation would not have been possible without their support and encouragement. They always provided me many ideas and guided me to the right direction. They spent time to revise my papers and organize this dissertation. They led me to understand what research is all about and how to enjoy doing research.

I also thank my thesis committee: Dr. Bor-Shenn Jeng, Dr. Hsin-His Chen, and Dr. Keh-Jiann Chen. They gave me invaluable suggestions and helped me clarify the ideas in this dissertation. I am also very grateful to Dr. Keh-Yih Su for his enthusiastic suggestions during my research study.

I would like to thank the members of NLP Lab who shared many good ideas with me. Special thanks go to Chien-Cheng Wu, David Yu, and Ming-Hong Bai for their preparing numerous data in my experiments. I would also like to thank my colleagues of Telecommunication Laboratories, Chunghwa Telecom Co., Ltd. for their constant cooperation in my work. I would also like to thank the other coauthors of my published papers, Dr. Thomas C. Chuang, Dr. Wern-Jun Wang, and Jiang-Chun Chen, for collaborating with me. In particular, I also thank to Dr. Bor-Shenn Jeng and Dr.

Chin-Hui Lee for their constant encouragement in my work as well as research.

Finally, I would like to thank my parents, my wife Fang-Ling, and my children for their loving support. Moreover, I would like to thank all those researchers and professors who have, directly or indirectly, given me inspiration during my graduate school years.
